

an Earlham education makes citizens of the world

Since Earlham opened its doors in 1847, much has changed in higher education. We have kept—and sometimes set—the pace. At the same time, we have held on to our cherished values, such as respect for all persons, individual integrity, simplicity of life, commitment to peace and justice, and the value of consensus and collaboration. Earlham has educated generation after generation of active, engaged citizens of the world.

Together, you and other Earlham alumni and friends have helped the College be the best it can be. But like education, Earlham College never rests. So we ask, how can we make Earlham better still?
